Nimbus Pay: Festive Campaign Addendum

Supplement to the Nimbus Pay Brand Book v3 · October 2026 · Fictional brand for demonstration

Festive campaigns (Diwali, Navratri, Eid, Christmas, Holi and regional festivals) are our busiest moments. This addendum clarifies how the brand book applies to them. Where it differs from the brand book, this addendum wins for festive campaigns only.

1. Celebration, not pressure

Festive copy may use celebratory urgency such as "Celebrate now" or "Light up your Diwali". Festive copy must never use fear of loss, regret or scarcity to push people to act.

> Do: "Light up your Diwali with 3% cashback." Don't: "Last chance ever, don't regret it!"

2. Festival names

Always write festival names in their common English spelling: write "Diwali", never "Deepawali" or "Divali", and write "Navratri", never "Navaratri" in English copy.

3. No gambling language

Never use gambling or chance-based words such as "jackpot", "lottery", "lucky draw" or "bumper prize" in any campaign. Use "reward" or "festive reward" instead.

4. Responsible imagery and words

Never show or mention firecrackers in festive creative; use diyas, lights and rangoli instead. This reflects our commitment to cleaner air during the festive season.

5. Writing amounts

Write amounts with the rupee symbol and Indian digit grouping, for example ₹1,000 or ₹1,50,000. Never write "Rs. 1000" or "INR 1000" in consumer copy.

6. Cashback caps are mandatory

Every cashback or reward offer must state its cap in the same sentence, for example "3% cashback, up to ₹150". An offer without a cap must not be published.

7. Inclusive greetings

Pan-India campaigns should greet everyone: prefer "Happy festive season" over greetings that assume the reader's religion, unless the campaign is for a specific festival.
